

The Capsule Collection

Providing bespoke chairs for individuals with musculoskeletal problems continues to be a core part of our business but we have also been working with clients for greater integration of standard and bespoke offerings. This is particularly important when budgets are constrained.

A dynamic way of approaching this is with our Capsule Collection. In the fashion industry, a Capsule Collection is a small group of essential items which do not go out of fashion and can be augmented with other pieces from time to time.

Put simply, our seating Capsule Collection includes a small, medium and large model of one chair using three different backs and three different seats. Crucially, these elements are all interchangeable and all at the same price. This creates the potential for nine different variants with independent seat and back adjustability, inflatable lumbar support and seat slide as standard.

We have also added a few key optional extras such as a neck rest, coccyx cut-out and a choice of armrests so that the Capsule Collection portfolio offers a wide mix of easily deployed, first-fix solutions which will address a high proportion of individual needs.

Inevitably, there will always be personnel who are outside the dimensional norms or have more complex requirements and, for these cases, it is easy to implement an escalation process to accommodate them (we have been doing that for over 20 years!).

Employers can extend the scope of the Capsule Collection by adopting it as the principal operator chair. This simplifies procurement and provides an even more cost-effective capability because standard chairs can be modified on site by swapping seat or back pads or adding an option. This methodology has proved particularly popular in the public sector.
